For Crippled Children

Jacksonville tonight will hold one of more than 6,000 public balls throughout the country, honoring the birthday anniversary of President Roosevelt, and at the same time contributing to a fund for treatment and education of children crippled by infantile paralysis.

The Jacksonville birthday ball deserves to be largely patronized. All other functions of the kind should be well attended, and no doubt will be. The advance sale of tickets for the balls in all sections of the country has been most encouraging.

It is a matter worth attention that 70 percent of the proceeds of the local ball will remain in Jacksonville to be expended in assisting local people. But great good also will be derived from the 30 percent, which will be forwarded to the Warm Springs Foundation.

In Jacksonville there is a class of children who have been handicapped by paralysis. Under the tutelage of Miss Josephine Milligan, herself a victim of infantile paralysis, the group has been doing excellent work in studies, and also in services to the children which may result in physical improvement. Miss Milligan's brave recovery from infantile paralysis and her determination to help those thus afflicted, has been an inspiring feature of Jacksonville's part in aiding the nationwide movement.

The organization of parties of all descriptions from country dances in the Virginia mountains to the shining propriety of the social event at the Waldorf in New York City, is so much further advanced this year, the national committee hopes for a much larger contribution to the anti-paralysis fund. During the last three years more than $3,000,000 has been collected through the medium of the President's Birthday Ball.

The hundreds of men and women who attend the event at the Jacksonville State hospital gymnasium tonight will contribute directly to the welfare of crippled children in this community and throughout the nation.

A Legal Question

Construction of a number of rural electrification cooperatives in Illinois has raised a question that the courts probably will have to pass on before it is definitely settled. That is, whether the cooperatives should be placed under the control of state regulatory commissions.

Morris L. Cooke, administrator of the rural electrification administration, has declared his belief that these farmer-owned systems should be exempt from regulations of the state utilities commission or other groups.

Replying to inquiries by Paul J. Raver, of the Illinois State Rural Electrification committee, Mr. Cooke said in part:

"Commission control was established to accomplish two things: first, to intervene between the buyer and the seller of electricity in matters of rates and secondly, to supervise the issuance of securities. In the case of cooperatives, the buyer and the seller are one and the same, and cooperatives do not issue securities for public distribution."

Mr. Cooke also pointed out that rural electrification is extremely simple from the engineering point of view and that cooperatives need only a minimum of engineering talent and legal advice.

We doubt if private utilities interests in Illinois will sit back and permit cooperative companies to remain unregulated without entering a protest. Private utilities are subject to supervision of the utilities commission. Some kind of a challenge no doubt will be raised, in belief that what is good for one kind of electrical business is good for another.

The courts may get a chance to rule on the matter before current is turned over to the cooperative systems. The question is but one of many involved in the efforts of farmers to make electrical power available in their neighborhoods.

A Timely Warning

If someone could write a volume about the unusual situations in the flood it might prove a best seller. Here is an incident showing the mysterious workings of Providence:

Two Litchfield, Ill., men, taking a heavy truck and trailer containing 10,000 pounds of milk, were stopped in Southern Indiana by a man who jumped from an automobile and started waving his hat in wild fashion.

"Better not try to cross that bridge," he said. "I just drove across and I think it was a little bit shaky."

The Litchfield men left their truck outfit standing where it had stopped and walked a few hundred feet to the bridge, an apparently substantial steel and wood structure spanning a small creek, then filled with water to within a few inches of the floor of the bridge.

One of the drivers gingerly stuck out his foot and pushed the first plank. Immediately the entire bridge collapsed and floated away. The concrete pavement began crumbling and almost dropped the men into the flood waters as they ran back toward the truck.

Had they not been warned the bridge undoubtedly would have collapsed under the truck and trailer and the 10,000 pound load would have been projected into the flood waters on top of them.

Did Providence step in to save that load of milk that was being taken to flood refugees?

No one can answer definitely. But one can only imagine the feelings of the truck drivers as they stood looking at the place where the bridge had been.

Lowden on Reorganization

On his 76th birthday anniversary, former Governor Frank O. Lowden and his wife were speeding to the far southwest to spend the remainder of the winter in sunlit Arizona. Newspaper men trying to worm a good birthday story out of him, found him cold to the proposal—birthdays and politics are dull subjects to an "old man," said Mr. Lowden.

But just a few days before leaving for his vacation he had given expression of his approval to the movement now current for reorganization of the executive departments of the federal government. Former Governor Lowden finds that the report of the President's committee on reorganization was an admirable document and could be the basis of effecting genuine improvement of governmental machinery.

The man who himself transformed the state government of Illinois from a maze of 100 or more independent bureaus and commissions into a compact organization under nine heads, could see in the proposed Washington plan a means for more effectively running the gigantic machine of the federal government.

Perhaps it might disappoint those who want to see some of the numerous government bureaus abolished, but Governor Lowden thought these bureaus would operate more efficiently if grouped into 12 general heads than they would if operating on their own.

Governor Lowden is too old and too shrewd a politician to give the plan his blanket endorsement, but he found much to commend in it.

Have it Done Now

A small scar on the arm is not nearly as unsightly as big scars on the face.

Vaccination is simple and effective. Smallpox is dangerous and unsightly. Why take chances?

The appeal of Dr. R. O. Stoops, city superintendent of schools, for general vaccination of children against smallpox, is an appeal to the common sense. Why take chances with smallpox when there is a simple and sure preventative?

Health authorities and officers of Parent-Teacher associations have joined with the superintendent in the vaccination campaign. Parents should give full cooperation by having children vaccinated at once.

Jacksonville has been fortunate this winter in being free from much contagion. But there are hundreds of children in the schools who are unprotected against the disease should it strike. There is smallpox in adjoining towns, and in the county. Now is the time to make sure that it does not invade the city.

Get busy! If you haven't been vaccinated in recent years, have it done. Take the children to the family doctor and have them immunized. Play safe yourself, and help the city remain free from the ravages of disease.

A Business Proposition

More than 75 percent of the consumer advertising campaign of Standard Oil Company of Indiana this winter was allotted to newspapers.

Space in daily and weekly newspapers with a combined circulation of 12,500,000 promotes the products of more than 23,000 Standard Oil dealers in 13 middlewestern states.

"Because of their complete coverage and flexibility, newspapers prove especially valuable for our advertising," said Wesley I. Nunn, advertising manager of the company.

Mr. Nunn's statement bears out again the truth that business has learned from experience. When you want results, newspaper advertising cannot be beat.

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana advertises to obtain business. When 75 percent of its advertising budget is placed with newspapers, the conclusion is undisputable. The newspapers are business builders, business getters.

Prawns, if placed in a tank through which an electric current passes, will creep to the positive pole.

Lauds Efforts Put Forth to Make President's Ball Success Here

Warren Brockhouse, general chairman of the president's ball, held this evening at Jacksonville State hospital, yesterday communicated his appreciation for the efforts of the affiliated groups of the Trades and Labor Assembly toward making the ball a success. His letter is as follows:

"To All Affiliated Groups of Jacksonville Trades and Labor Assembly: As general chairman of organization for the birthday ball for the president of the city of Jacksonville, I wish to express to you at this time our sincere appreciation for your efforts in behalf of the success of this worthy cause. The leadership taken by the membership of the various crafts in the city of Jacksonville in the sale of tickets has assured the most successful ball that has been held in this city to date and I cannot make an expression of gratitude too strong.

"The united effort displayed in this sale of tickets by your organization has provided a lesson in organized effort in this community. The ticket committee appointed by your group has functioned at all times in perfect coordination with our general plan of organization and should be commended highly.

"I wish to also express the appreciation of the national committee in charge of the birthday ball and to transmit to you your heartfelt appreciation. It is my personal hope that you will all be able to attend this dance in person with your wives and friends.

"Wishing you the best of luck in your organization efforts for the year of 1937, I am

"Sincerely yours,
"Signed, Warren Brockhouse"

Most Infections Enter Body via Nose and Mouth

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

There are various ways in which germs enter the human body. They may, of course, enter with the air, through the nose and the mouth—most of them through the mouth. The infectious organisms also may get in with dust, with objects placed in the mouth, or what is known as "hand to mouth" infection may be responsible.

It has been estimated that at least 90 per cent of infections enter the body by way of the nose and the mouth—most of them through the mouth. The infectious organisms also may get in with dust, with objects placed in the mouth, or what is known as "hand to mouth" infection may be responsible.

These facts obviously are of importance in preventing infection. Hands should certainly be washed before and after handling food, or attending to any of the ordinary toilet affairs of the human body.

Hands should be kept away from mouth and nose as much as possible. No one with decent manners will put his fingers in his nose or use his fingernails to pick his teeth. Intelligent people do not chew the ends of pencils or hold other objects in the mouth. They leave this for the lower animals.

Dishes and other utensils used for food or water should be boiled after use by one person and before use by another, particularly at times when there are epidemics of coughs, colds and other respiratory diseases. Food and drink should be clean and moist foods thoroughly cooked. Such simple measures would prevent innumerable cases of infection.

Most infections pass directly from one human being to another, through the medium of a carrier. There may, of course, be germs in the air, in street dust, and in various other materials, but Nature usually is able to keep these under control, as will be explained later.

Infections differ as to the route by which they enter or are transferred to the body. Tuberculosis, for instance, comes in most times by way of the lungs; infantile paralysis probably by way of the nose; and syphilis by way of the genital organs. In most cases the infectious material is transmitted by direct contact; in others it is transmitted indirectly through water, food, soil, and air. In still other cases, it is transmitted by insects or other carriers.

Applying a mathematical formula, experts in preventive medicine point out that the danger from infection diminishes inversely as to the cube of the distance from its cause.

True, infections are sometimes carried for great distances in peculiar ways. For example, a survey reveals that an infected mosquito may travel on an airplane from South America to the United States, but that a mosquito infected with malaria can hardly be blown by the wind from Brazil to the United States. Sun, wind, and other factors in our environment act unfavorably on infectious organisms; otherwise, we would all long since have disappeared.

The term "contact infection" means a quick transfer of germs. This contact may not involve actual touching of one person by another. It may, however, involve coughing, kissing, sneezing or handling.

Infection may result from direct contact between an infected person and one who is well, or from a double contact—of an infected person with a carrier and of the carrier with one who is well.

It is possible also for infection to be transferred by soiled hands, towels, or cups, by remnants of food, toys, pencils, doorknobs, and similar materials.

CAMPBELL SENTENCED TO JAIL FOR THEFT
Byron Campbell, who was arrested with Lloyd Kinney in connection with the theft of wire from the Chicago & Alton right-of-way, was denied probation and sentenced to serve thirty days and pay a fine of $20 and costs Friday morning in county court by Judge William E. Thomson.

The judge did not issue a workhouse mittimus, making it possible for Campbell to be liberated at the end of the thirty day period without paying the fine.

Foster Daughter of Allan Cole Awarded Residue of Estate

Judge Finds Missouri Laws Entitle Girl to Claim Estate

Probate Judge DeBoise this week entered an order determining the heirship in the estate of Allan Cole, late sheriff of Sangamon county, who was injured fatally on Oct. 18, 1934, in an automobile crash a short distance east of Jacksonville. By Judge DeBoise's order, Lucille Cole was declared to be the adopted daughter of Sheriff Cole and she will, therefore, get the residue of the estate.

The judge making public his decision, said the case presented some very interesting legal problems as there never was a formal legal adoption, so far as anyone was able to learn. The state of Illinois, by its laws, the judge held, does not recognize an adoption unless there is a legal adoption and court record of the same. Judge DeBoise held that "inasmuch as at the time of the adoption in this case Sheriff Cole lived in the state of Missouri, and since under the laws of Missouri equitable adoption is recognized; and Sheriff Cole reared Lucille Cole as an adopted daughter, introduced her among his friends as such and she was generally known as such, under the law of Missouri that would constitute what is termed an equitable adoption. The equitable adoption having occurred in the state of Missouri, Judge DeBoise found that the courts of Illinois were bound to recognize the relationship established under the laws of Missouri, notwithstanding the fact that under the laws of Illinois such state of facts would not have created a legal right to inherit."

Mr. Cole was twice married. He and his first wife lived in St. Louis from 1911 to 1926, when she died. He made his home in that city about a year longer. Later he entered the publishing business in Pleasant Plains. He later remarried. He and his second wife both met death in the same accident, which occurred while he was en route to Jacksonville to address a political meeting during his campaign for election as state representative from this district.

Louisville Refugees Here Tell Stories of Suffering in Disaster

Morgan county is getting its share of flood refugees, and the stories they tell indicate that the half has not been told. "No one can paint it as bad as it is," says Kenneth Lehmenkuler of Louisville, Ky., who has arrived with his family at the home of his wife's father, Richard Newton, in the Prentice community. The Lehmenkuler family, twelve in all, traveled out of Louisville last week-end by boat, truck and box car.

When they left their home at 1012 South 38th street in the west end of Louisville last Sunday, the water was on the first floor, Mr. and Mrs. Lehmenkuler and four children had already been driven from their home closer to the river and were quartered in the two-story home of his mother, Mrs. Harriet Lehmenkuler who with three of her children, accompanied them out of the city when her home was threatened. Her husband, three sons and a daughter remained behind, believing the flood would not reach any higher.

"We don't know where they are now," Mrs. Lehmenkuler said Friday. "They were helping others in distress the last we knew. I am sure the water has reached the second floor of my home. We brought nothing except the clothes we are wearing. We had to leave quickly to save the younger children. We carried them from the house into the boat."

The refugees were taken first to the Fall City brewery, where they spent Sunday night. They were given a choice of boarding boats to be taken to higher ground or proceeding by train to Salem, Ind. As they watched the loading of the boats, several of them were upset, throwing fifteen people into the swift water. All were rescued, but the minds of the Lehmenkulers were made up. They took the train.

They were placed in box cars and taken across the river, and then sent in coaches to Salem. The journey to that concentration point was fraught with hardship. Water was scarce, and was given to the children by the spoonful to relieve their parched throats. There was scarcely anything to eat for two days. The refugees made coffee by putting the grounds in cold water and letting it stand to bring out the strength. The brew was sweetened with syrup, and canned milk was used for cream.

Relief at Salem

However, when the refugees reached Salem, they were treated splendidly. They received meals, medical service and shelter. Army cots were provided for them in a large building. The town furnished entertainment in the evening, the high school band contributing its share.

By long distance the flood victims got in touch with their Prentice relatives. John T. Atkins went to Salem with a truck and brought them to the Newton home. At Salem they received one inoculation, and were told to get in touch with the Red Cross in this county, which they did Friday.

Mr. Lehmenkuler is a foreman in the plant of the Ford Motor Co. at Louisville. His description of what happened there was vivid. "Last Friday morning we reported for work. It was raining hard and had been raining for three weeks. When I went to work, I found water 18 inches deep in a low spot about two blocks from my home. The plant is located right on the river. When we got there, we were held idle waiting orders from Detroit. We were told not to go to work and were sent home. When I started home, I waded water shoe top deep across the factory parkway, and the plant was being flooded."

The elder Mrs. Lehmenkuler described the experience of her son, a member of the midyear graduating class at the Shawnee high school. "The children went to school Friday morning, but stayed only about fifteen minutes. They were told to get out and save their lives. Men were then wading through the basement of the building in hip boots. Sewers had broken loose and the water was backing up in the school. Some sewers were shooting their contents ten feet in the air."

Mrs. Harriet Lehmenkuler is experiencing her second major disaster. She was in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake and fire thirty years ago. "But the earthquake was nothing like this flood," she commented.

The children of the young couple range from five to 11 years of age. The father said that he will return to Louisville as soon as it is permitted and resume his work.

White Hall Sends Out $400; Gather Clothing and Food

Expect to Send Another Check Next Week; Supplies to Leave Saturday

White Hall—A check for $400 for flood sufferers was mailed from here Friday morning by the local chapter of the Red Cross, and school children from both the high school and grade school began collecting clothing and food to be sent from here early Saturday morning.

Supplies from White Hall are being gathered at the C. & A. depot and at the city hall. The supplies will be sent direct to the Red Cross distribution station in the flood area.

Sam Sykes is chairman of the local unit of the Red Cross, and is carrying on the campaign with the aid of several Red Cross workers and school children here.

Funeral services for the late William Lyons, who died at his home here last night, will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at the residence on East Bridgeport street. Burial will be in the White Hall cemetery.

"Flu" Victim From Cairo Arrives Here; Says City Deserted

W. Louis Hildreth Arrives Here to Recuperate at Parents' Home

William Hildreth, an employee of the American Telephone and Telegraph company at Cairo, Ill., arrived here Thursday to recover from an attack of influenza after coming down with the disease during the midst of the battle to save the city from the flood waters of the Ohio river.

Somewhat improved Friday despite the arduous trip by truck and train out of the flood-threatened city, Hildreth described Cairo as the "deserted city". Almost all of the women and all of the incapacitated persons and children have been moved out of the city, and business is at a standstill.

Hildreth told of the strenuous work which went on in the city during the days prior to his departure. His wife and child, Billy, came to Jacksonville Monday to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hildreth, 812 Hardin avenue, when orders were issued for all women and children, with a few exceptions, to leave the city.

Businessmen of the city immediately began moving out their stocks of merchandise. Some of the businessmen took their goods to cities believed to be out of the flood threatened area, while others moved their stocks up to the second floors.

Men worked feverishly on the big sea-wall, guarding the town, to build up an additional three foot restraining wall, and it is believed that the wall will be high enough to prevent water from spilling over into the city.

The crest of the flood is expected to strike the city Sunday. Hildreth worked in the office of the A. T. and T. transmitting messages to various parts of the city where workers were building up the sea-wall, and aided in transmitting evacuation orders. There was not much sickness in the city when he left Wednesday, he said, and conditions were fair, although there was no business activity. The people remaining in the city are waiting until after the crest of the flood passes before resuming normal activity.

Hildreth left Cairo Wednesday on an A. T. and T. truck, going to Carbondale where he boarded a C. B. & Q. train for Jacksonville. The evacuation of Cairo was orderly, and hopes were high that the city could be saved.

James Oster returned to the city Sunday afternoon from Shelbyville, Mo., where he was called because of the illness and death of his mother.

Mrs Wilhoit Tells Mother All Is Well

Louisville Woman Reached by Long Distance Phone After Eight Hours

Direct word has been received from Mrs. Marian Miller Wilhoit, of Louisville, Kentucky, by her mother, Mrs. J. Marshall Miller. Mrs. Miller succeeded Thursday in getting through a long distance call to her daughter, after eight hours. Mr. Wilhoit and her family are safe in their home, which is located in the highlands.

Mrs. Wilhoit is entirely cut off from communication, since her radio can not be used. The only mail service is by air and all residents are ordered to remain indoors, except for getting necessities. She still has gas and plenty of coal, but no lights. They had a supply of food in their home and are rationed for water.

A distillery is putting out 3,000 gallons of drinking water a day and the ration is 3 gallons for a family a day, if they come for it. The stores in the vicinity of Mrs. Wilhoit's home are still doing business and people are allowed to buy what is needed but not to hoard.

Mrs. Miller said her daughter did not know of the extent of the flood, the death toll, or the disease. She stated that none of the Louisville people, except officials were aware of the full extent of the disaster.

Mrs. Wilhoit said that they had been advised not to attempt to leave since conditions south would only hem them in and they might meet a worse situation in the immediate north. The best means of communication is through the long distance telephone service. They are getting through a large number of calls, 7,000 a day was the report Thursday. All first class mail is taken by air to Indianapolis and there is no way for it to leave by airplane.

Blueboys Romp Over Eastern; Crimson Beats White Hall In Thriller

Visitors Put Up Stubborn Argument But Fail To Show Winning Punch; Score 39-28

Illinois College Blueboys continued their winning ways in Little Nineteen company here last night by expelling the Eastern Teachers from Charleston 39 to 28.

Charleston threw their classy freshman squad at the Blueboys at one stage of the game, but no combination could stop the locals. They trotted out to a small lead in the first half, which they fattened as the battle progressed.

The visitors did not go down without making a fight—the Teachers tried all tricks at their command in an effort to check the Jacksonville collegians.

Illinois was ahead 17 to 14 at half-time.

Charleston started an all freshman team at the beginning of the second half, leaving the yearlings in charge of things for five minutes before any substitutions were made.

Illinois College freshmen beat the

Routt Loses Battle To Hannibal School; Plays Here Tonight

McCooley High Succeeds In Stopping Rockets With Last Half Assault

Hannibal, Mo., Jan. 29.—The Routt Rockets of Jacksonville made a fight of it for two quarters against McCooley high here tonight, but in the end submitted to a 28 to 16 trouncing at the hands of the talented Missourians, who have been beaten but once this season.

The Jacksonville team played without the services of Beerup, a regular who is ill, and Perry, a center, was able to take part in only one quarter of the fray. Despite the absence of regulars, Routt was able to put up a creditable battle.

The teams were even at 4 all at the end of the opening quarter, with Routt ahead 7 to 6 at the half. In the third quarter McCooley long-shot artists got in some telling work, running the score to 22 to 11 in their own favor. Routt at this stage of the game and from there on was on the defensive.

McCooley, a Catholic high school, has lost only to Quincy Academy during the present season.

The Jacksonville team returned home tonight to meet Quincy Academy Saturday night at Liberty Hall.

Routt will play Quincy Academy on the Liberty hall court Saturday night.

Louis Beats Pastor In Decision Battle

Capacity Crowd Jeers Brown Bomber in Poor Showing

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Before a howling, near capacity crowd of 18,000, Joe Louis, minus his flinty bombs, outpointed Bob Pastor, nimble ex-college boxer, tonight in a 10-round pursuit match that presented one of the strangest heavyweights spectacles witnessed in the Garden's battle-pit in many a harvest moon.

Entering the ring on the short end of 10 to 1 odds, Pastor spotted Louis nearly 25 pounds, then put on a reverse band of footwork with such success that he weathered the limit of ten full rounds without once being seriously damaged, much less knocked off his feet.

Baffled by his opponent's backpedalling, swift-circle tactics, Louis not only failed to explode any of the punching dynamite for which he is famous but actually was hard-pressed to gain anything like a decisive margin on points over the artfully dodging former New York University full-back.

On the Associated Press score sheet, Louis was credited with only five of the ten rounds—the first, fourth, fifth, eighth and ninth. Pastor took the second, third, sixth and tenth while the seventh was registered even.

Referee Arthur Donovan and the two judges, George Le Cron and Charley Lynch, scored unanimously for Louis.

The crowd, officially put at 18,864 customers, with gross gate receipts of $111,510, boomed the verdict lustily and jeered Louis as the obviously crestfallen Brown Bomber left the ring.

Pastor, who emerged unscathed as the first heavyweight to go the limit with Louis since the latter's knock-out last June by Max Schmeling, didn't even lose the plaster patch that he wore over his left eye when the bout started.

Louis, slow, wild and completely baffled by his rival's tactics, showed the effects of Pastor's punches around the region of the ribs and kidneys, besides a sore nose that bled throughout the last five rounds.

Ringside critics, almost as completely wrong in their speculation over the outcome as they were in the Louis-Schmeling bout, quickly circulated reports of a "clean up" by Broadway betting men. Plenty of money had been wagered, it was said, against the chances of Pastor going the limit.

Selected Issues
Take Stock Gains

New York, Jan. 29.—(P)—Automotive, steel and specialty issues put on a climbing show of their own in today's stock market as many leaders refused to take part in the performance.

The list shuffled along indifferently during the greater part of the session. But along late in the day Wall Street heard rumors of imminent strike-settlement of the General Motors strike.

A brief but brisk buying rush put the ticker tape behind for a time and pushed favorites up fractions to around 3 points, many to new post-depression tops. The flurry subsided as quickly as it started. While the bellwethers retained most of their advance, extreme gains were reduced before the close and losses were numerous.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 3/4 of a point at 71.3.
Transfers totaled 1,954,400 shares compared with 2,343,430 yesterday.

Utilities were at a standstill and some amusements reflected a drop in theatre attendance in parts of the country affected by conditions and abnormal weather conditions. A slowdown of retail trade, reported by Dun & Bradstreet, kept merchandising issues within bounds.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(P)—Enlarged
Canadian export business, together with abrupt upturns of Liverpool
quotations, gave the Chicago wheat market a lift of 11 cents a bushel maximum today.

Purchases of wheat to be shipped
from Canada were estimated at 1,000,
000 bushels, with Norway, Antwerp
and Rotterdam the best buyers. Great Britain also bought from Canada.

Liverpool cables said liquidating
sales of wheat abroad appeared to be over, and that Great Britain had re-entered the market for Argentine wheat, realizing that the amount unsold in Argentina will not be large after European continental countries
have filled their requirements.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures
were 1-1/2 cents above yesterday's finish. May 1271-1/2, July 1101-1/2, Sept.
1071, Corn unchanged to 1 cent lower,
May 1061-1/2, July 1001-1/2, Sept. 951-1/2, oats 1-1/2 up, May 491-1/2, and rye 8-1/2 advanced, May 571. Provisions closed at 5 to 10 cents decline.

Export Business
Advances Wheat

Chicago, Jan. 29.—(P)—Enlarged
Canadian export business, together
with abrupt upturns of Liverpool
quotations, gave the Chicago wheat market a lift of 11 cents a bushel maximum today.

Purchases of wheat to be shipped
from Canada were estimated at 1,000,
000 bushels, with Norway, Antwerp
and Rotterdam the best buyers. Great Britain also bought from Canada.

Liverpool cables said liquidating
sales of wheat abroad appeared to be over, and that Great Britain had re-
entered the market for Argentine
wheat, realizing that the amount un-
sold in Argentina will not be large after European continental countries
have filled their requirements.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures
were 1-1/2 cents above yesterday's finish. May 1271-1/2, July 1101-1/2, Sept.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

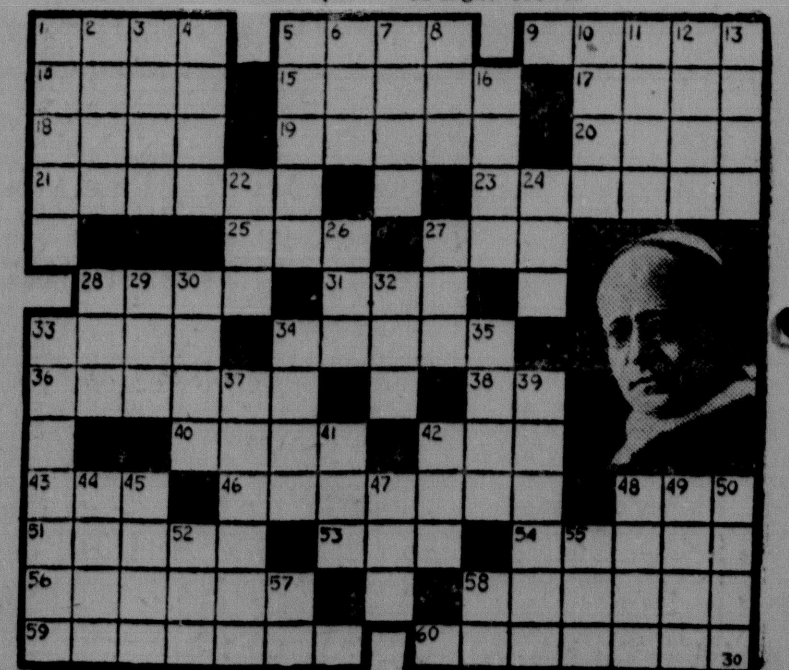

MANY of the dates set for the end of the world were years on which it was known that several of the planets would be grouped together in one sign. Today, such a conjunction means nothing. Such a thing occurred in 1933, when Jupiter, Mars and Neptune huddled together in the Sign of Leo, but few people other than astronomers knew about it.

Are You Needing Money Right Now?

—Here's one good way to get it quickly.
—Make an inventory of your home from basement to attic. You are bound to run across something that has been discarded at one time or another and is a "White Elephant" in any household. Bureaus, chairs, beds, sewing machines, stoves, lamps, books, baby carriages, used clothing, shot-guns, etc., etc.
—Now take a pencil and paper and make a list of these articles, describing them in detail. If you want help, Journal-Courier ad-takers will assist you and tell you the cost of the ad.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOLITHO BLANE, British financier, disappears from yacht owned by his principal competitor, CARLTON ROCKSavage, of Miami. STODART, indicates suicide since he faced bankruptcy. A memo written by Stodart shows Blane's company stock, ARGO'S SUBS, closed. Other passengers aboard the yacht GOLDEN GULL, are MISS FERRIE ROCKSavage, Rocksavage's daughter; LADY WELTER, REGINALD JOCELYN, MRS. JOCELYN, Lady Welter's daughter and son-in-law; the BISHOP OF BLIDE; COUNT LUDIG POSODINI, and INOSUKE HAYASHI.

Detective Officer KETTERING boards yacht on return to Miami for investigation.

CHAPTER II
MR. NICHOLAS STODART'S STATEMENT.

MR. BLANE told me about a fortnight ago that his companies were in very serious difficulties but that his principal competitor, Mr. Carlton Rocksavage, had invited him to a conference in the United States. Mr. Blane believed that Mr. Rocksavage's companies were in almost as serious difficulties as his own, owing to the price cutting war which had been going on between them for a considerable time.

Mr. Blane was the big man of the British soap combine and Mr. Rocksavage the head of the rival group in America. Between them they could have had the virtual control of the world soap market, but they have been trying to smash each other for months past and neither has succeeded to date. That cost both groups an immense amount of money, and an amalgamation between them would have meant salvation to them both, whereas, if they continued their rivalry, it was quite certain that one of them would go under.

Mr. Blane accepted Mr. Rocksavage's invitation and we sailed for the United States in the Berengaria. During the voyage Mr. Blane was very depressed. He steadily fell in the shares of his companies caused him grave anxiety and he told me repeatedly that if Argus Suds went below 45 he would have very little chance of pulling off a deal with Rocksavage except upon ruinous terms and that, if Argus Suds went below 40, there would be no chance of his pulling off a deal at all, as it would pay Rocksavage better, in that case, to let him go under. The fact that the shares of the Rocksavage companies were also falling, although in a lesser degree, did not appear to console him.

Mr. Blane's depression was so great at times that I had grave doubts as to his sanity. He seemed to think that Rocksavage and his associates would stop at nothing to wreck him. He knew, of course, that his death would mean a complete slump in the Blane interests and, although he had never met Mr. Rocksavage, he apparently regarded him as a man who might even go the length of engineering his death in order to smash the Blane companies.

He knew that his only hope of pulling his companies through was this conference on the Golden Gull, yet he seemed to think that by going on board he would be taking his life in his hands, and it was such statements as these which made me consider him to be off his mental balance at times.

JUST before 7 o'clock we came out to the yacht in a tender and, on being told that Mr. Rocksavage was on the bridge, went straight down to our suite with the chief steward. The cabin steward came along and asked if he could unpack, but Mr. Blane was so nervous that he would not allow the man inside his cabin. The yacht got under way just about then and Mr. Blane told me to change at once and, when I

Says Rising Public Opinion Safeguard To Peace of World

Mrs. Mildred Scott Olmsted Declares World Is Not Headed Into War

Mrs. Mildred Scott Olmsted is one of the most prominent of international affairs who does not believe that the United States is headed toward war, or that a world conflict is immediately impending. In an address before a joint meeting of two women's organizations here yesterday, Mrs. Olmsted even went so far as to predict definitely that the nations will not engage in war, at the same time stating her reasons.

"All governments are afraid of their own people; some of the governments are afraid to place guns in the hands of their own people," Mrs. Olmsted, who is field secretary for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, said.

She spoke at a joint meeting of the international organization and the League of Women Voters, at the David A. Smith House. Previous to the meeting she was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Colonial Inn.

While not seeing alarming possibilities of armed conflict between nations, Mrs. Olmsted laid down a number of rules for continuation of peace. She believes that with the nations working toward a goal of peace, tranquility in the world can be preserved.

Popular Opinion Powerful

"There is an increasing control over foreign policies by popular opinion, the speaker asserted. "There is an increasing reluctance of people to engage in warfare, an increasing number of governments that do not want war, and an increasing number of people who don't want war."

Mrs. Olmsted said there is a double-barreled conflict going on in the world at present. One of these is an economic war, and the second is a conflict of ideas and ideals of governments. She pointed to the tendency of nations to make their own problems as one indication that the world is not going to war.

Modern wars are fought not by armies, but by populations, the speaker declared. She said in event of future wars the women as well as men would be drafted in operating business and industries at home.

Mrs. Olmsted said there are four types of persons in any community who must be dealt with in promoting the cause of peace. There are those who do not want war and do all in their power to stop it; others vaguely opposed to war; slightly militaristic groups; and the minority group which approves war. Control the latter classes, the speaker said, and there will be no wars.

Must Pay Price of Peace

"If we don't want war we must pay the price of peace," Mrs. Olmsted said. She was active in overseas service during the world war, and in 1932 headed an international peace study tour through 11 countries. The address was a testimonial to the speaker's study of peace problems of the various countries.

Mrs. Ernest Savage presided over the session, with Mrs. O. N. Foreman as program chairman. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. LaRue Van Meter. Tea was served at the conclusion of the address, with Mrs. Foreman presiding.

The February meeting of the League of Women Voters will feature a visit by the three state representatives of this district, who will discuss state legislation. Representatives Hugh Green, William J. Lawler and Andrew O'Neill have been invited to address the league.

Frank Hoskins of Hillview Commits Suicide at Home

Greene County Man Hangs Self in Barn; Rites to Be Sunday

White Hall, Jan. 29.—Frank Hoskins, 60, of Hillview, committed suicide today at 11 a. m. in the barn on his premises. Earlier in the morning he was said to have told his wife, "I can't stand things any longer."

Later she attempted to persuade him to abandon a suicide plan when she took a rope away from him that he had procured at the home of his son-in-law, Kenneth Dawdy, who resides one mile from Hillview.

Hoskins then went to the barn, called "Goodbye," to his wife from the loft, and used a derrick rope to hang himself. Death was said to have been almost instantaneous.

In a note which he left, he instructed Mrs. Hoskins to call Undertaker Frank Dawdy of White Hall to care for the remains.

Coroner Russell Shields conducted the inquest in Hillview last night. Survivors include Mrs. Hoskins, formerly Malinda Powell; one son, Clement, working somewhere in the northern part of the state with a construction company; a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Dawdy, of near Hillview; three brothers, Joseph and Edward, Hillview; Fred of Idaho; two sisters, Mrs. Gus Turner, California, and now visiting in Hillview; Mrs. George Garrett, Hillview, who is critically ill at her home.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Hillview Baptist church.

Charles S. Ehnie Returns From Flood Area in Missouri

Jacksonville Business Man Visits Refugee Centers This Week

Charles S. Ehnie arrived at his home in the city yesterday afternoon after having visited some sections of the flood area. Mr. Ehnie spent Thursday on business in New Madrid, Charleston and Kennett, Mo., where swirling waters lap at high levees.

In New Madrid and Charleston are thousands of refugees, driven from the lowlands which surround these communities. Entrance can be gained into these towns only by pass said Mr. Ehnie, no sightseers being permitted to enter.

The levee at New Madrid is 25 feet in height, said Mr. Ehnie, and the water was within eight feet of the top last Thursday. Old river men in that community do not believe the water will break thru the levee, said Mr. Ehnie.

Most of the people who have been driven from their homes in this section of the flood area have limited means, said Mr. Ehnie, but their losses, while small mean much to them. They are being housed in school buildings and other buildings and fed from centrally located places. Both New Madrid and Charleston are being used as refugee centers.
